This is going to be slightly lengthy but here are two pictures. I used standard 4.1m crochet needles (with yarn on hand to avoid clumps due to stitches). Round 1 Round 2 I started with 6 sets of 4 (about 4.5 mm of circular needle. 5mm should be a good thing for me to set with it rather than the 7mm they typically are). To do this I placed 6 on each of the other three pieces in my 5cm chain. I was worried the 4â€³ needles might get caught in my chain as I would need to have the 6â€³ needles as opposed to the 8â€³ it should be with. Round 3 As you see in the lower left hand corner, I began to pull down with 1â€³ of extra long needles as I felt the "s" had the best resistance to both sides of the loop at this point. A few of the 7mm were getting tangled up and were stuck, but to my surprise there was another 6â€³ on the 2nd chain â€" another 7â€³ if you can call thatâ€¦ After my work finished I laid three rounds on each of the rings together. Round 4 Repeat with the 8th, 4th and 11th stitches. Final Round: I would start with each of the 5 rings as I had done earlier. Starting at around the 2nd circle I put up a small loop with the hook. It then turned in all the way up to 3.5. Then began to turn out for my final round to make it so 2.5-4 feet (about 9â€³) would be working for it. At this point the 6/4â€³ ring became slightly wide. I placed a third round over each end and then rolled one inch on each end â€" 1 A¼â€³ to 3 A½â€³ round â€" the rings didn't turn. My final round came out perfectly as that's what I'd want â€" a total of 5 rounds. From here I decided to have a little light crochet bit with two rounds until the base ends and sides of the rings were ready. Next up was the first big chain round (see photo above). I had some really large stitches on that one and rolled the other
